Your safety comes first: we're closed — for now

Before we resume operations, we will utilize this downtime to deep-clean and sanitize all dive equipment, do maintenance work on our boat fleet and jeepneys, and make improvements to our operation overall. Pura Vida also offered some of the Sea Explorers team the opportunity to work on our vegetable gardens and chicken farms.

Family first : Taking care of our own

Our employees are the backbone of our entire operation. We gave each one of them PHP 5,000 in emergency funds, and we'll continue to assist them in every way we can by and helping them collect government aid and by planning fundraising activities.

This is Tata, one of our dive guides in Cabilao. His household is one of the affected families during COVID-19. His family's income comes from what he earns at the dive shop — and his wife's sari-sari store, which is now closed because the government prohibits small businesses to operate to comply with social distancing guidelines. Thankfully, the locals are still allowed to fish, the local government provided sacks of rice, and some kind-hearted individuals handed out relief goods for each household. Tata feels grateful for all the help he has received during this crisis, including the emergency funds from Sea Explorers.

2-year voucher for re-booking

We've issued vouchers: 2 years free re-booking of pre-booked accommodation, and 3 years for pre-booked dive packages.

This pandemic will end at some point, and when it does, we want nothing more than for the world to travel, dive, explore and relax again.
